Local Banker Kevin Hogan Named Senior Vice President at Pacific Crest Savings Bank

LYNNWOOD – (January 10, 2014) – Pacific Crest Savings Bank announced today that it has named Kevin Hogan, as senior vice president of client services. Long-time President and CEO Sheryl Nilson said she is pleased to bring on board the community banker and former chief operating officer and SVP of retail operations at City Bank of Lynnwood.

“I enthusiastically welcome Kevin to his new role and am pleased to have someone with such a strong background in community banking on our team,” said Nilson. “Kevin will provide valued insight to our management team, covering all aspects of retail banking, including new products, services, marketing and operations. He also managed multiple branches in South Snohomish and King County markets,” Nilson said.

Under Nilson’s leadership, Pacific Crest Savings Bank has emerged as the leading locally owned community bank in Snohomish County. Pacific Crest is noted among Washington banks providing specialty lending in such areas as floating homes, multifamily and commercial real estate.

Hogan is a Montana native who attended local schools including Montana State University and earned his Finance and Business Administration Bachelor of Arts degrees from Central Washington University. He has more than 25 years of experience as a community banker in Snohomish and King Counties, beginning with City Bank that was acquired by Whidbey Island Bank in 2010. He then held a similar position with Pacific International Bank in Shoreline until they were recently acquired by BBCN Bank.

“I am pleased with the opportunity to work with Sheryl and the rest of the leadership team to help Pacific Crest Savings Bank maintain its position as a top performing bank and a great place to work,” Hogan said.

ABOUT PACIFIC CREST SAVINGS BANK: Headquartered in Lynnwood, Pacific Crest Savings Bank is now in its 30th year, with assets of $163 million and remains one of the few locally owned, independent community banks in Washington. For more information visit the company website at www.paccrest.com.
